Disabled: _____ Yes _____ No _____ I do not wish to self-disclose

The American's with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the follow up amendment (ADAAA) retain the basic definition of "disability" as an impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities, a record of such an impairment, or being regarded as having such an impairment. However, the ADAAA broadens the definition of "disability" by modifying key terms of that definition by: expanding the definition of "major life activities"; redefining who is "regarded as" having a disability; modifying the regulatory definition of "substantially limits"; specifying that "disability" includes any impairment that is episodic or in remission if it would substantially limit a major life activity when active; and prohibiting consideration of the ameliorative effects of "mitigating measures" when assessing whether an impairment substantially limits a person's major life activities.

Examples of Disabilities: Physical or mental impairment – any physiological disorder or condition, cosmetic disfigurement, or anatomical loss effecting one or more of the following body systems; neurological, musculoskeletal, special sense organs, respiratory (including speech organs), cardiovascular, reproductive, digestive, genitourinary, hernic and lymphatic, skin or endocrine.

Major life activities – means functions such as caring for one's self, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, working, and receiving education or vocational training.
